The Sentiments of Frenchmen Toward the Prussians of Paris

[From the Courrier des Etats Unis by Figaro]

In the last few days Paris is transfigurated This Paris of revolts this Paris of June and January this troubled divided Paris lacerated by numberless factions has suddenly and as by enchantment become that which it always was in the greatest crisis of our history, the soul of France the advance Guard of the Nation!

At the first alarm cry these small quarrels have subsided the hostile Cortes have adjourned their bitterest disputes, there has been a national truce of hostilities and all hearts have joined in the unanimous cry

Fatherland is in danger

And the mother has given her sons, the wife her husband the citizens their money old men have offered their feeble assistance women their brave hands and infatigable devotion Belleville has fraternized with the Boulevard Montmartre and the Chasse d Antin

The Church has blessed this national armament Eight centuries have passed since this mystic call "God wills it" The West has risen against the East. To day the whole of humiliated France rises at the national appeal Honor wills it For it is an old account which we are going to settle—the final liquidation of Leipsic and Jena This war which sets the four corners of the universe in a fever is rather a war of races than of principles It is the old Gallic blood which revolts against the German blood Therefore we hope that the battle will localize itself between the belligerent nations, and that other nations may remain attentive but neutral, if not indifferent witnesses of this inevitable duel

France has no hatred Its pride has received sufficient legitimate satisfaction to be able to give to its opponents the alms of disdain But Prussia remembers bloody injuries To her Leipsic has not been the revenge of Jena Blood alone can blot out the hatred which anterior humiliations may have put to sleep but have strangled This profound inveterate hatred is inherent in the soil One feels it floating in the air

In a Roman, animated by the purest breath of patriotism in the product entitled Prussian Terror in Frankfort in 1866, Alexander Dumas has marvelously depicted the feeling with which the dwellers on the banks of the Spree are filled

"It is" he says "a sort of monomania which troubles the most limpid spirit One does not more readily become a popular Minister in Berlin than by promising that sooner or later, war will be declared One is no poet except when he writes or has written against France a lampoon styled Le Rhin, Leipsic or Waterloo"

These poetical hallucinations have in these last days come within the domain of reality Even before the declaration of war had officially sanctioned hostile acts French women in the streets of Berlin had been subjected to the most odious outrages and our countrymen were driven to the frontiers at the point of the bayonet

It seems that in view of these savage manifestations there should be in the French heart only one unanimous feeling of disgust and a violent desire of vengeance And still we have found in our Chambers men who repudiating all patriotic traditions and deaf to the voice of national honor, have cynically protested against our respectable and legitimate susceptibilities

These Prussians of France, these emigrants in our midst those allies of the future German empire all those who have severed themselves voluntarily from the mother country to open the doors to foreign invasion, all those who would turn the profit of the national war to the profit of the civil war—all those we repudiate as not belonging to our family and we nail forever their fratricidal names to the pillory of publicity

Let all of them be cursed in the towns and in the country! May the doors of castles houses and huts be shut to them and may they find an asylum only in that cursed Prussia, the country of their adoption and predilection

SENSATIONS MATRIMONIAL.—The great hymeneal celebration which converted Miss B[illegible] into Mrs Gen [illegible] has been put in the shade by a wedding which was celebrated in the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky a few days since. The happy couple [illegible] Miss [illegible] of [illegible] and Mr Charles L. Calvert of Louisville All the ladies of the party were in Cave costume—short skirt and Turkish trowsers The [illegible] was magnificent being composed of a number of stalactites and stalagmites place [illegible] 50 feet square and [illegible] feet high One hundred invited guests attended [illegible] they were still in the sight of Almighty God [illegible] like a bridal [illegible] the question [illegible] Niagara [illegible] Bride [illegible] bridesmaids [illegible] as well as the clergyman [illegible] task of serving a banquet [illegible] won by [illegible] for the newspapers New York [illegible]

The New York Herald learns of the case of Fred [illegible] who has returned to Maryland after suffering five years imprisonment [illegible] sentenced to perpetual banishment from the United States, a slight stretch of [illegible] by the authorities of Maryland for having in his possession [illegible] work called "Uncle Tom's Cabin" [illegible] says there is a good chance now for him [illegible] a seat in Congress and this is what [illegible] change a few years have wrought in the political condition of the colored race

Recapitulation of Army Movements

LONDON August 20—Following is a recapitulation of army movements for the past few days, received here to day from Paris On Sunday, the 14th Bazaine established a temporary line of defence on the right bank of the Moselle between Falquemont and Frango along the river Moselle, After Metz was fully garrisoned he retired to the left bank of the Moselle attacked by Prince Frederick Charles who with 70 000 men assailed Bazaine's rear commanded by Generals d Exea L Admirault He tried to break the French line but only detained its retreat some hours, and was at length repulsed with enormous loss The Prussian army came within range of the guns of St. Quentin and was mowed down by French artillery After this battle the Prussians sent a flag of truce and asked an armistice to bury the dead, granted by the French commander

Monday the 15th, Bazaine passed the Moselle with his army undisturbed Tuesday Prince Frederick Charles having also passed the Moselle with his principal force attacked the French right at Gravelotte and Thionville At the same time that the first Prussian army corps under Steinmetz advanced from northeast to southwest toward the French center and left at Doncourt. A severe battle took place here. The Prussians tried to envelop the French on the north and east and drive them back on the third Prussian army under the Prince Royal which was advancing from Bar le Duc French peasants alone baffled this plan which, if successful would have left France without other defenders than are now in Chalons

Bazaine's fight on Thursday defeated the third army of Prussians The Prussian army has been badly punished

LONDON August 20—The Prussian reserves at various points amount to 200 000

It is stated by the Paris police that the report that Prince Frederick Charles is wounded is untrue

Revolution in France Threatened

LONDON August 20—A special to the New York Herald says Private letters from Paris predict a certain rising of the population and expulsion of the Bonapartes from France the creation of Trochu dictator, and eventual restoration of the Orleanists

The reported insubordination of the Garde Mobile at Chalons is confirmed Insulting cries were made against the Emperor and his officers, and the worst spirit manifested. The whole Garde are to be transferred to Paris and scattered among troops on fortifications.

A special to the Herald says that at Berlin to-day the publication of the King's dispatch announcing the defeat of Bazaine created tremendous enthusiasm

Evening—Special to the Herald.—A dispatch to the Prussian Embassy reports that Bazaine made a desperate effort at daybreak to cut through the Prussian lines After three hours' fighting, he was repulsed with heavy loss and again driven within Metz

PONT A MOUSSON August 19 via Berlin, August 20—Yesterday the Prussians won a brilliant victory near Gravelotte The French were expelled from every position they held, driven back upon Metz and confined to the narrow territory around that fortification, completely cut off from Paris. MONDAY MORNING AUGUST 2[illegible] 18[illegible]

The European War

At [illegible] it is possible [illegible] the [illegible] of war [illegible] the [illegible] and pressure of the German assault on the French armies for the period of two weeks. Heavy masses of troops have been thrown in rapid succession on one position after another and have apparently carried every point by the sheer weight and fury of their attack. The French though fighting bravely have not been able to stand against the tremendous momentum of the German onset. It seems probable that the French have been outnumbered and it is certain they have been outgeneraled. In the German mode of attack celerity of movement has been added to the steady valor and tenacity for which the race is proverbial. The world has often been surprised by sudden and stupendous results but it has rarely been surprised to a greater degree than during the last fortnight by the tremendous energy of the German attack and the consequences that have followed it. France, it was supposed, would attack and Germany would defend. It would have been so had the Emperor shown himself a man who like the first Napoleon, could discover and seize the supreme moment, and act with that terrible energy and promptitude which such occasions demand. But, after having declared war his course was irresolute and vacillating. He missed the opportunity to make the war an aggressive one and Germany its theater. The advantage which France should have derived from being first in the field was lost and she is now on the defensive contending with desperation to maintain her position in Europe and to support her martial renown. The Emperor began by playing at war. The Germans from the time they assembled their forces, have been at work in fearful earnest. The sacrifice of life among them must be appalling but it will prove to be economy in the end. The slain in battle in a "short, sharp and decisive" struggle can bear no proportion to the number who perish about the camps amid the hardships and exposures of a protracted war.

United Germany is invincible. In a defensive war she could maintain a contest against the rest of Europe. France certainly is full of resources. She has good soldiers fighting for the honor of their country and the integrity of its territories, contending in a war begun by themselves to maintain their ascendancy in Europe, and remembering the humiliation of the occupation of Paris on two occasions by German soldiery, the French people are urged by every motive that can appeal to them to make a prodigious effort. Waterloo itself which as a French journal has expressed it, "still reaches the hearts of Frenchmen like a sob echoed from two generations of men," was not so deep a humiliation to France as would be the complete triumph of Germany now.

What are the chances for continuing the struggle? The resources of France are hardly yet touched. If the spirit of faction can be kept down she may yet succeed in baffling her enemy. Of troops she has or can have a number equal to those brought into the field against her. The regular army of France on a peace footing, prior to the war was 334,280 men. On a war footing it numbered 757,727. To these forces is be to added the Garde Mobile, numbering nearly 400,000 more. There can be no lack of material for soldiers; the only question is whether an organizing, controlling mind can be found to marshal and direct them. Fierce as the fighting has been, the French probably have not lost above 100,000 men. Their opponents must have lost quite as many. France, therefore, notwithstanding her recent reverses, can still have troops enough. Bazaine is said to be entrapped in Metz, but it will take an army as large as his own to hold him there. The forces at Chalons may serve as a nucleus around which a new and powerful army may be gathered. It would seem that the war is not necessarily over by any means; on the contrary, if the strife of factions does not betray her into the hands of her enemies, France may yet so far retrieve her fortunes as to check the invading army.

But if her humiliation should be complete what will be the conditions of peace? Unless other nations should interpose, some of her provinces on the Rhine would almost certainly be taken from her. The other Powers might, however, through jealousy of Prussia, refuse to allow the strength of that country to be augmented further, and thus preserve the territorial integrity of France. An almost certain result, however, will be a change of Government. The French will have no use for an Emperor who cannot lead them to victory. But such a change will be an unfortunate event for France. The present Emperor has done much for her prosperity. France has fared better under him than under either of the three preceding reigns, and the overthrow of the Empire may be followed by events which the world would deplore.

We compassionate the Herald. That paper has heard that a "Radical State Senator in Mississippi is about to marry a dusky maid of Africa" and is very unhappy. Its distress finds vent in a leading editorial on the proposed matrimonial alliance, in which the degeneracy of the times is tastefully deplored. Now that "Radical State Senator" we should say, is about to do a very improper thing but then he has high Democratic precedent for it. Does the Herald remember the case of Richard M Johnson? Some say, however that he was not married to the "dusky woman of Africa" who was the mother of his children. If this was the case, the Radical State Senator is about to pursue a much more honorable course, in that he proposes to marry the dusky maid.

Great Britain is growing weary of supporting her American colonies, and would not evidently, hesitate to have them set up in business on their own account. Recently a deputation from Newfoundland waited upon the Colonial Secretary and asked that the British troops now in the Province be suffered to remain as a protection against a possible Fenian raid, but the interviewers were coolly received and told that they must protect themselves. The Government probably anticipates that it may have more urgent business for its troops at no distant day than the protection of remote colonies from improbable assaults.

Vincent Collyer, the apostle of that species of sentimentalism which displays itself in crying [illegible] that imaginary being called the "noble red man," is coming out here it is said, to look after Indian matters generally.

It is said a telegraphic blunder caused McMahon's disaster. Failley was directed to move on Limbach and found Vausback in the telegrams received.

West Side Railroad Management

There is but little [illegible] mystery about the failure of the west side railroad [illegible] relations to the management [illegible] plainly [illegible]. The other day we published some extracts from a report by Mr Gaston, in which certain of the inside transactions of the company were divulged. It was therein shown that a contract had been made with Messrs S G Reed & Co to build the road; that the existence of this contract prevented a negotiation with parties in England that would have resulted in the success of the undertaking and that finally S G Reed & Co threw up their contract. In the Bulletin of Sunday we notice a communication on this subject from some one who has been connected with the enterprise, accompanied by certain official documents of the company, which are thus recapitulated:

Above we find that it was on Mr Newby's motion that the contract was given by the Company to S G Reed & Co to build one hundred and fifty miles of the road and that it was also upon Mr Newby's motion the said contract was rescinded; next, that Captain Ainsworth had as an officer of the Company taken a solemn oath to "faithfully and honestly" discharge the duties devolved upon him had voted first to award a contract to S G Reed & Co, of which he was a member and had subsequently, at a meeting of only three Directors (himself included) voted in favor of Mr Newby's motion to rescind and annul the said contract, in which he was himself an interested party and, further, that he voted to himself as a Director a valuable consideration of bonds and lands of the Company, notwithstanding his firm and himself were defaulting contractors.

It is now easy to see how the west side railroad could have been successful. Had the contract with S G Reed & Co been announced at the time the contest about the land grant took place in the Legislature the west side might have had the grant and secured its road. But instead of going forward with the enterprise the contractors backed out, and work was suspended.

It also appears from another document published in the communication to which we have referred that Mr. W S Ladd offered fifty cents on the dollar for fifty-five thousand dollars of the Company's bonds, which were endorsed by Washington county and that the offer was accepted. The following remarks are made on this transaction:

A search through the official record of the subsequent proceedings of the Company's Board of Directors reveals no mention of the bonds thus transferred to Mr Ladd. He had possession of them at the time the resolution was adopted, as Treasurer of the Company. The bonds bore the endorsement of the authorities of Washington county, and might therefore have been considered the best bonds the Company held, and though Mr Ladd's offer was at a rate less than the unendorsed bonds issued to S G Reed & Co, as 58 is to 50 it was accepted by the Board in his behalf. As Mr Ladd's bid was accepted, it is inferable that he took the bonds and paid the money for them. If he did the books fail to show the transaction, or what became of the money. It rests with Board and with Mr Ladd to make an explanation of the transaction.

It is not probable that any one hereafter will express surprise that a corporation whose affairs were managed in this way failed to build a railroad. More disclosures are promised. West side people will now begin to see what has been the matter. We give the facts as they appear from the documents furnished and leave those interested to draw their own conclusions.

A description of the French weapon the mitrailleuse, is given in the San Francisco Scientific Press. The machine stands on a frame supported by four legs. There is a revolving steel cylinder with four sets of chambers for the cartridges. Each set consists of five chambers corresponding to the five barrels of the gun. The whole of the chambers may be loaded very quickly. The barrels are not quite parallel, but a little further apart at the muzzle than at the breach, which gives a scattering fire. Two men can carry the machine. It is quickly placed in position, and the direction of its line of fire may be varied with great facility. Yet it seems that the French have not obtained any very good results out of it.

OREGON.

On Tuesday, at noon, Curry, the only son of Rev L L Rowland, of Fifteen Mile Creek, was drowned in the waste reservoir on the bluff back of Dalles.

Messrs Longmire & Rankin of Mormon Basin, recently rocked out $257, in seven days, from the claims bought of Mr Kries. That is rocking to some purpose.

Says the Albany Register: "As high as 85 cents per bushel was paid by our buyers for wheat last week but news of depression in Europe and the East has sent it down to old quotations—75 cents."

Democratic financiering has got Wasco county deeply in debt. Most of the indebtedness has been incurred illegally and by sharp practice. The Mountaineer says the people can "equitably adjust," if they see fit to do so.

James M Townsend, of Salem, has died from the effects produced by having a corn on his foot operated upon by an itinerating chiropodist. Mortification ensued, and all attempts to check its progress failed. It is thought the knife of the operator was poisoned.

Messrs. Quinn & Barnhart, while constructing a ditch to turn the water through the bedrock, in their diggings in Amelia city, Baker county, unearthed the skull of a buffalo. The dirt in the skull was washed out, and gold to the amount of twelve dollars was found therein.

The Mountaineer of Saturday says "Mr Wm H Clarke, of Canyon City, called on us yesterday. He corroborates the statements in regard to the destructive fire at Canyon City but says that nearly all the goods in the fire proof cellars were saved. They had commenced rebuilding the town when he left."

The Statesman tells of a volcanic eruption of recent date on Butte creek, Marion county, six miles above Cooper's coal mine. This great curiosity was discovered by a man named Whitlow last September and is supposed to have occurred the June previous as the fern of last year's growth is partly covered by the eruption.

CALIFORNIA ITEMS

Japanese bamboo plants are growing finely on Twitchell Island and at Calistoga. The Alta says there are now 4 000 of these plants in the State, all doing finely.

The Lower Lake Bulletin learns that the California Borax Company are about resuming operations after an inactivity of two years or more. The Borax Lake is quite low owing to the evaporation induced by the extreme heat this summer.

John Briggs who has harvested 1[illegible] acres of castor beans near Marysville, is about to erect an oil mill to work his product, rather than sell the same at 4½ cents per pound. It is said that 800 acres have been planted with castor beans in Yuba and Sutter counties this season.

The California Pacific Railroad is doing an immense business in freighting wheat. All along the line of the road immense piles may be seen waiting for transportation. Thousands of tons quantities far exceeding the capacity of the road to move in a day or a week and constantly in readiness. Notwithstanding some 400 tons of grain principally wheat, arrive daily at Vallejo there is no diminution but rather an increase in the constantly accumulating piles. Several months must elapse before the last sacks will find their way to shipping.

The peanut crop of Virginia, this year, is estimated at 400 000 bushels while Tennessee raises 300 000 bushels, and Georgia and the Carolinas from 150 000 to 175 000.

THE TERRITORIES

I F Jordan has received the appointment of Inspector of Customs at Seattle.

Messrs Phillips, Horton & Co have established a bank at Olympia. This firm have had for some time a bank at Seattle.

On the 30th of July the First National Bank at Helena, Montana purchased gold dust to the amount of two thousand ounces.

There are 140 Chinamen at and in the vicinity of Blackfoot. They have also been buying ground rapidly in the Silver Bow country.

A letter from Seattle, August 1[illegible] says: The surveyors upon the main and branch lines of the N P Railroad are progressing rapidly with their work, and meeting with no obstacles as yet. Several prospecting parties have left for the mountains during the past few days. Weather excessively warm and smoke in abundance.

By an exhibit furnished by the Puget Mill Company, it appears that its production of lumber of all kinds, piles and ship timber, is in excess of previous years. They have shipped this year 2[illegible],501,099 feet rough lumber 3,350 966 feet dressed lumber, 5 464,100 laths 1,312 000 shingles 320 8[illegible]6 pickets 1[illegible]2 spars [illegible]0 655 piles 6[illegible]4 ship knees, and 25 domestic poles.

The Seattle Intelligencer says: The exhibit lately compiled from papers on file in the Custom House in the Collection District for Puget Sound, makes a very flattering showing for our last year's foreign and coasting trade. During the period of one year ending July 1, 1870 we note the arrival of 272 foreign and American vessels of all kinds and a departure of 248 imports amounting to $3[illegible] 000 and foreign exports of $2[illegible]0 000 worth of lumber, and $175 000 in value of other articles and coastwise exports of lumber aggregating more than three millions of dollars in value. The export of lumber is largely in excess of former years.

SECURE A HOME!!

HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION!

OF

EAST PORTLAND, OREGON

IS NOW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS to their Stock.

Application for ONE HUNDRED SHARES was made before the books were opened and a large number of Shares have been taken.

The following extracts from the Oregonian and Bulletin will convey a good idea of the plan and workings of the Association, the location of the land, etc etc.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

This association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since, is now ready to dispose of shares. As it is with one exception, (the Portland Homestead Association) the pioneer organization of that kind in this city it may be well enough to state what are its purposes and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct its operations. The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word. They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands consequent upon the co-operation of many individuals—shareholders—and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of, but still near, the city. The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river, the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river, half a mile in length, and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad, half a mile in length, the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them) the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H. It is divided into 74 blocks, 200 feet square (with streets running at right angles) and 80 fractional lots, along the river front. The shares number 600, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association, shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held. When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder the proceeds of such sales after deducting the original price of shares or lots, to be divided equally among the whole number of shares. Thus, if a person wants a particular lot or block, and is willing to pay $100 or $500 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property, the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen, therefore that everything is co operative, and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss, unless the property by some chance, should depreciate far below the first actual cost. Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself but considering the steady and unprecedented advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood and at East Portland and vicinity, for the last year or two it seems hardly possible for values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks, or twenty four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $3 per share payable with the first installment being liable in this latter case to another (and only one other) assessment of $3 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full, with the assessments as above, the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary, who gets $25 per month, so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau, nearly level, about 60 to 90 feet above the water. There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is every foot of it, of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract, affording the means of irrigation, and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder, if he choose, may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent or he may continue his interest, undivided with the Association while the organization may exist.—Oregonian.

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

We have been led to make these remarks from the fact that the subject of making homesteads on the outskirts of this city and East Portland is being thoroughly discussed here among all classes and one homestead—the Riverside—just south of East Portland—has already been established. The site selected is a tract of land lying a little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It is shaped like the letter H, one side of which a half mile in length [illegible] fronts on the river.

From this portion of the homestead, which is elevated but a trifle above the other prong of the H, but is still forty or fifty feet above the river can be had an extensive view of Portland, East Portland, the shipping and the Wallamette river for several miles. The land is very fertile and is partly covered with light fir timber. A tract [illegible] wide enough for two rows of blocks with an avenue between them connects the west prong of the H (which has already been described) with that of the east. This last tract of land is a beautiful little valley which is now under a high state of cultivation through which its length runs a brook. The water of which is clear as crystal. With a hydraulic ram the Association proposes to have water conveyed through pipes to every part of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin.

CITY.

A [illegible] HEARTLESS C[illegible].—On Saturday evening a young girl of some twelve years was found wandering around in the streets in a pitiable condition of distress, being unprotected and with no place to go for shelter. She gave her name as Lizzie Bran[illegible] and represented that she came here about a month since with a woman named [illegible] Her mother [illegible] in California. The child was deserted by the party [illegible] her home [illegible] and then came up here. In a few days the woman [illegible] the child was left among strangers. [illegible] to Portland and subsequently leaving for Puget Sound [illegible] in a few days [illegible] picked up by a black woman [illegible] in the Court of [illegible] It is probable that [illegible] the surveillance of the police, as the girl was alarmed [illegible] Saturday evening she turned the girl out of doors into the storm. When found the child had been picked up by [illegible] information to Marshal Saunders who placed her in charge of Mr Ward keeper of the county jail who will take care of her until her father can be informed of her whereabouts. The object of the heartless and abandoned woman who decoyed her away from home was unquestionably to sell her to disgrace and ruin. If she has escaped the penalty of the law she may yet know the vengeance of an injured parent.

CIRCUIT COURT—UPTON JUDGE.—Proceedings of Saturday Aug 20.

State vs James Wilson sentenced to the penitentiary for the period of eight years.

Mitchell & Dolph vs L Besser demurrer to complaint overruled, defendant allowed ten days to answer.

Ladd & Tilton vs Page & Block demurrer overruled.

Northrop vs Wallace decree entered by default.

Ladd & Tilton vs Robinson & Lake et al, demurrer overruled.

Oliver vs Ferrara & Anderson, motion to strike out part of separate answer of Ferrara, allowed.

Hainer vs Thompson motion to set aside report of referee taken under advisement.

Adjourned until August 31st.

ASTORIA ITEMS.—From our regular correspondent, Aug 1[illegible]. The weather has been cool and pleasant for the last few days. It has been trying to rain to day but will not succeed.

The Josie McNear is laid up for repairs.

The Norwegian bark Loverd arrived on Thursday loaded with railroad iron.

The steamer California arrived from Portland Thursday morning took on board 590 cases of salmon and proceeded to sea.

There are a few improvements going on. Buildings are being improved.

There is a call for the citizens to meet to-night and take into consideration the organizing of a fire company and the purchase of a machine.

PROPOSALS TO BUILD BRIDGES.—The County Commissioners have ordered proposals to be received till the 14th day of September for the building of two bridges at East Portland, and the advertisement of the Clerk to that effect will be found in our advertising columns. One of the bridges is to be a substitute for the one now in use on J street from the old ferry landing to the high bank, the other to be built on L street from a point near the old powder house to the high bank near Dr Hawthorne's residence.

GERMAN IMMIGRANTS FROM MINNESOTA.—A Mr Richard Schrimmel, a well-to-do German from Minnesota who has been taking a look at the Pacific coast this summer, has lately concluded to settle in Yamhill, where all our great [illegible] got their start and has purchased a farm, and started for his family. It is said he will probably induce many of his German friends to accompany him when he comes out again. The more the merrier say we, of that sort.

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH OF PORTLAND.—It is stated that an effort is being made to induce Rev Mr Stalling who some months ago preached the dedicatory sermon at the Lutheran church in this city to accept the pastorate of the congregation. Many who are not connected with that congregation will remember him as the gentleman who lectured some months ago on the subject of "A stranger's impressions of Oregon."

BRIEF MENTION.—The Oriflamme will be due from San Francisco this evening.

The Ford[illegible] is discharging her railroad iron upon lighters.

A long train of construction cars started yesterday for the front loaded with rails.

Messrs Russell & Ferry will have an auction sale of East Portland real estate to-morrow morning.

ASCENT OF MT HOOD.—A party of several ladies and gentlemen of whom Mr L J Powell, of Salem was one returned to this city Saturday evening from Mt Hood having been absent two days. They report that six of the party, four gentlemen and two ladies, ascended the mountain to its summit without any serious difficulty.

GROVE MEETING.—The Spiritualists of Oregon will hold a grove meeting at Butteville commencing September 9th—to continue three days. Arrangements have been made with the P T Co's steamers to take passengers at half fare, and an extra boat will run from this city on Sunday the last day of the meeting.

THE [illegible] MASHERS.—It is said that the boys of Multnomah Engine company of this city intend to take their machine to the State Fair and contend for the premium offered. If they do everybody can just bet their bedrock dollar that the Multnomah machine comes home with the blue ribbon.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Friday a Mrs Wright was very seriously injured at or near Oregon City by a runaway team. She was thrown violently out of the wagon upon a pile of rocks, and one of her legs was crushed in such a fearful manner that at last accounts it was thought doubtful if she could recover.

LITERARY AND MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT.—The ladies of the M E Church having secured the services of Chaplain McCabe who has kindly volunteered will give an entertainment in aid of the Church [illegible] fund on Wednesday evening.

STATE FAIR.—We are indebted to Mr John Minto Secretary of the Oregon Agricultural Society for complimentary tickets of admission to the next State Fair [illegible]

[illegible] In consequence of rain and muddy track the races advertised to take place Saturday afternoon [illegible] the White House was postponed [illegible] Tuesday at 2 P M.

[illegible] for Larceny.—Three Chinamen [illegible] Saturday evening for larceny and [illegible] before the Recorder this morning.

Arrived.—The bark Loweid from Wales arrived yesterday afternoon in tow by the Okanagon. She brings nearly 600 tons of railroad iron.

From Below.—The Okanagon, from Astoria, reports that on Saturday, when she left, the Hattie [illegible] had not yet come in over the bar.

MATTERS AND THINGS AT ASTORIA.

[FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.]

Editor Oregonian: The weather two weeks ago almost rivaled your Portland summers for heat, but for the past few days it has been pleasantly cool, and the strong breezes from the sea have come to us again.

The pretty mermaids and sea serpents that were paddling around in the water with such abandon (and not much else on) a few days ago now walk the dry land wrapped in gay colored shawls looped and twisted and twined about them in a manner that would bewilder old Neptune himself.

There has been quite a lively little party of comfort seekers from the city this season and some invalids from different parts of the State have come to gather strength from the vigorous breath of the sea. The hotels and boarding houses have been crowded, consequently business has been lively and everybody generally in a like state of mind.

Our term of Circuit Court is just ended. It was unusually interesting this time owing to there being several persons indicted for numerous offences, such as selling liquor without license, salmon without inspection, etc. The latter offense has been practiced with impunity by almost every trader on the Columbia river and in Portland, and the cases were supposed to be prosecuted merely through malice, but as the prosecuting witness, R. G. Aldrich, failed to prove what he wished to, the parties were all cleared without any hesitation. This law compelling fishermen to have their salmon inspected appears to be an unjust one, and it is sincerely hoped by all parties engaged in the fishing business that the Legislature will abolish the old law and enact one better calculated to guard the interests of the business.

This place is delightfully healthy, and a very nice place to live in—plenty of bread and butter, and the ships come in with their banners and sails flying bringing news from the outside world. As an item I will mention that a little "unpleasantness" occurred down in one of our saloons the other evening, and two or three nice young men went about town the next day like Katie Lee and Willie Grey, with two eyes black and two eyes blue. The women, so far as is known, get along very peaceably. More anon, if you please.

A. G. D.

Astoria, August 20, 1870.

For South America.—The brig Ke[illegible] is to go to Cementville to load with lumber for Callao, South America.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Republicans of the Third District of Ohio have drafted General Schenck into the service in spite of his protests, and have renominated him for Congress.

After saying that "the great fall fight is to be made upon the members of Congress," the St Louis Times (Democratic) resignedly remarks: "In Missouri our hopes of increasing the Democratic delegation are but slight. If we retain the Wells and McCormick districts we shall do all we expect."

It being charged that a Louisville negro voted twice, the New York Commercial remarks that it could put up with theft, murder, elopement with white heiresses and all other claims to social equality, but when he sinks to a level with the Democratic repeater, there is room for apprehension that emancipation may prove a failure indeed.

The Franco Prussian war is furnishing material for articles in favor of Napoleonism in the columns of the leading Democratic organs throughout the country. Among the most prominent of these papers are those old dyed in the wool ultra Democratic sheets the Chicago Times, the Cincinnati Enquirer, the Boston Post and others of less influence nearer home. The papers that support the cause of Prussia are denominated "Hessian sheets."

The Cincinnati Times says the Louisville Courier Journal is intensely agonized about the "great army of insolvent and rapacious plunderers," and pathetically remarks: "To the repast set apart for these voracious myriads, not one Democrat is admitted either by popular election or Executive appointment." So, after all, it is not the plundering which fills the souls of the Democracy with woe, but the fact that they are not invited to participate.

News from Arkansas is encouraging to the Republicans. They are quite confident of increasing their majority, and of carrying the entire Congressional delegation. Gov Clayton, who is a candidate for Senator, is making an active canvass. The registered vote at the last election was about 88,000, and that cast about 77,000. The colored vote was 22,000, about 4,000 persons are disfranchised, but the feeling in favor of amnesty is on the increase.

NOTES ON THE WAR.

Among the German prisoners taken at the beginning of the campaign are members of the Landwehr who were called into the service six weeks ago. This proves that Prussia expected the war before it was declared, and was not taken by surprise, as her government frequently asserted.

The excitement in London has led to an increase of between 50 and 75 per cent in the sales of the leading daily papers. Such an increase would be impossible in the United States, because here almost everybody reads the papers daily, war or no war. England has a much larger reserve of readers to mobilize than we have.

"Louis and I were in front, when the bullets fell about us. Louis keeps a ball he picked up. The soldiers wept at his tranquility." These, says the New York Tribune, are the words in which Napoleon III writes his bulletins of battle. We don't remember anything of the same sort in the bulletins of Napoleon I. A popular writer said recently that there were some things so absurd in themselves that they could not be burlesqued; a travesty was sure to fall below the exquisite nonsense of the original. Is the Emperor of the French one of the things that can't be burlesqued? His soldiers will fight, we are sure, like a million heroes, but Napoleon writes like a Fenian General. We are afraid indeed that "Louis and I" are the greatest frauds of the campaign.

A New York paper has this: A Frenchman and officer who left London a few days ago full of patriotism and hope for his country writes: "I have just met some persons from Nancy who retreated before the Prussians, who day before yesterday were at Neon [Ville?] a few miles from Nancy. They will move thence by Toul and probably join the other army behind Chalons, perhaps at Paris. Why the French army remains concentrated before Metz nobody understands. It is thought the Prussians are already at Nancy, and it appears that the Empire is rolled up like a scroll. What has been said this morning is true. For twenty years nobody in France has studied war seriously; everything has been done superficially, while the Prussians are first in science and have now proved they are first in war. It is hard for me to confess this, but it is true notwithstanding."

CURRENT NOTES.

The city of Boston owns ninety seven pianos, valued at $30,000. They are in the public schools. Of the 35,000 children attending these schools, nearly one-half are supplied with books at the expense of the city.

The Sandwich Islands Legislature has just given a substantial evidence of the advance of the people of the Hawaiian kingdom in Christianity and civilization by passing a divorce law. Doubtless the Kanackas are looking forward to annexation to the United States, and are determined to compete with Indiana and Illinois for the trade which has rendered those States so famous.

The iron for the Northern Pacific Railroad will be made from the ore and rolled for use near its eastern terminus, somewhere in the vicinity of the southwestern shore of Lake Superior. Competent parties are now looking around for the most convenient and economical location for the necessary furnaces and mills. The charter requires that the track should be laid exclusively with American iron.

Recently, when a train on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad entered the tunnel at R[illegible]bridge Gap, a mile in length, a passenger sought to avail himself of the three minutes' friendly darkness for the purpose of changing his linen. It so chanced that the clean shirt was stiffly starched and the surfaces refused to part company, and as the train emerged into daylight the unhappy man was seen frantically endeavoring to thrust his bare arms through the most refractory of sleeves.

Execution in New York.

On the 5th inst John Real was hanged in New York for the murder of policeman Smedick of that city. A short time before his execution he issued an address to the public, in which, after reciting the palliating circumstances of his act, he makes the following extraordinary statement:

But these are but mere excuses. I am sent to my grave for far different reasons. All my political friends in the Twenty first Ward were opposed to Mr Hoffman's nomination for Governor. They gave all their support to the Hon Henry C. Murphy of Brooklyn, who was a rival candidate. So long as my friends sustained Mr Hoffman and the other Tammany nominees, so long I was undisturbed. My case was never called to trial until my friends supported Mr Murphy as candidate for Governor, months and months after I was arrested. These facts are not only known to Governor Hoffman, but to nearly every politician in the city. The Tammany politicians took advantage of the excitement caused by the Rogers murder to punish my friends for their refusal to support Hoffman by bringing me to trial. Oakey Hall sat upon the bench with Judge Barnard, and the trial was rushed through without allowing me time to defend myself. Had my friends continued to uphold Tammany, I might now have been at liberty. Men are now at large through the influence of Tammany who have committed, unlike me, unprovoked murders. Take the case of Donohue. He is charged with the murder of Florence Scannell. He is now out on bail. Why? Is it not because he is a member of the Tammany Hall General Committee, and because he has been made a member of the American Club since the murder? I feel confident that I, like him, would have escaped if my friends had followed Tammany's leadership. Before the trial one of my friends met Peter B. Sweeny in the park. Sweeny said: "Real must be hanged. He has got to be hanged. The interests of Tammany Hall demand it." Was it for the interests of Tammany Hall that Governor Hoffman refused to commute my sentence? Was it for this that he refused to grant a respite when implored by some good priests who asked for a few days in which to prepare my soul for eternity? But the will of God be done. I feel that the Governor has acted wilfully, but from the bottom of my soul I forgive him, and I pray that God may forgive him too, for I feel in my last moments that he needs the forgiveness of God. I die warmly thanking my friends for all they have done for me, and they have done much. To the Sheriff and the Warden and all the keepers I am indebted for the kindest sympathy and attention. God I am sure will reward the faithful priests and the good Sisters of Mercy who have been unremitting in their kindness to me. I die guiltless of the stain of murder. Of this I am conscious. And I die in the hope that this fact will soften the bitterness, the pain and the anguish of my poor father, sisters and relatives, while weeping over my grave.

JOHN REAL.

The great railroad era has dawned upon this State. The locomotive whistle is already heard in our midst. The North Pacific railroad have a regiment of engineers and surveyors in the field, and will soon have thousands of men constructing the road. Hundreds of new settlers are arriving every month to fill up our State and develop her resources. But it matters not how many come, Kohn & Fisner will be ready for them with all kinds of Clothing and Staple goods. They are constantly receiving fresh supplies by every steamer, so their stock cannot be exhausted. Call and see them at their old stand on Front street.

The remarkable properties of Brown's Bronchial Troches have been thoroughly tested since first introduced. The demand for them has steadily increased, and purely upon their own merits they have found favor with those who from Pulmonary, Bronchial or Asthmatic complaints require them. For Coughs and Colds they are efficacious.

Spiritual Grove Meeting.—At Butteville on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept 9th, 10th and 11th. Good speakers have been secured for the occasion. The P. T. boats will carry passengers to and fro for half price. They will also dispatch an extra boat on Sunday for the benefit of those wishing to go on that day.

Be on Your Guard.

The unexampled success which for twenty years has accompanied the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters provokes the envy of ignorant nostrum mongers in all parts of the country, and the counterfeiting business having been measurably played out in consequence of the numerous suits instituted against offenders, a new system of tactics has been adopted. In the South and West especially a legion of "Bitters," prepared from worthless materials and bearing a variety of names, have been got up by irresponsible adventurers, with the hope of substituting them to some extent for the Standard Tonic of the Age. In some cases country druggists are the concocters and proprietors of these unscientific and trashy compounds, which are warmly recommended by the venders, who endeavor to palm them off in lieu of the great specific which has never yet had a successful competitor either among the proprietary preparations or the medicines prescribed in private practice. This notice is intended to put the public on their guard against persons or parties engaged in the attempt to substitute mere rubbish for the most efficient stomachic and alterative at present known. At this season of the year it is of the greatest consequence that no tricks should be played with depressed and enfeebled systems. Ask therefore for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great vegetable invigorant and alterative, and reject with the scorn and contempt the worse than useless nostrums offered in its place. It is as important to the public as to the proprietors of the famous restorative that this advice should be heeded.

September 5th, 1870,

Under the Charge of

Prof WILLIAM H. ROGERS, A. M.,

With a corps of Accomplished and Experienced Teachers from the East.

THE INSTITUTION UNDER HIS SUPERVISION will be second to none on the Coast, and will deserve the confidence and support of the community. We annex the annexed testimonials.

WM. H. WATKINS,
President of the Board of Trustees.

A. C. Gibbs, Secretary.

Rev W. H. ROGERS, A. M., of the Genesee Conference, for the past three years the popular and successful Principal of the Griffith Institute, Springfield, N. Y., has accepted the call to the principalship of the Portland Academy, Oregon. We congratulate our Oregon friends on the prospective transfer to their midst of an able minister and a superior educator. Professor Rogers is a worker, and his labors will prove invaluable to any community where they are put forth.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

PROF. ROGERS is a man of superior talent and culture.—Cattaraugus Republican.

It is needless to say that his efforts have been appreciated. The results tell most emphatically. He found our school in a dilapidated condition. It now ranks among the first in New York.—Student's Repository.

SOLE PROPRIETORS AND MANUFACTURERS OF

(First Premium.)

The world-renowned reputation, together with the extensive and increasing demand for DR. HUFELAND'S SWISS BITTERS will at once recommend them to the favorable notice of all connoisseurs and lovers of a GOOD AND HEALTHFUL TONIC AND INVIGORATOR. As a Purifier of the Blood, acting surely yet gently on the secretions of the Liver and Kidneys, they are unsurpassed, and a most agreeable drink.

This Remedy does not simply relieve for a short time, but it produces perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases of Chronic Nasal Catarrh, and I will pay $500 reward for a case that I cannot cure. "Cold in the head" and Catarrhal Headache are cured with a few applications. If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, stopping up of the nose at times, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull, have pain or pressure in the head, you may rest assured that you have Catarrh. Thousands annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, terminate in Consumption and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. I will send my pamphlet on Catarrh to any address free. Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy is now

SOLD BY MOST DRUGGISTS IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

Price 50 cents. Sent by mail postpaid on receipt of 60 cents, or four packages for two dollars. Beware of counterfeits and worthless imitations. See that my private Stamp, which is a positive guarantee of genuineness, is upon the outside wrapper. Remember that this private Stamp, issued by the United States Government expressly for stamping my medicines, has my portrait, name and address, and the words "U. S. Certificate of Genuineness" engraved upon it, and need not be mistaken. Don't be swindled by travelers and others representing themselves as Dr Sage; I am the only man now living that has the knowledge and right to manufacture the genuine Dr Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I never travel to sell this medicine.

MARK LANE

Description of the Great London Market.

(From the N. Y. Independent.)

[illegible] when gold is 14[illegible] steam cannot take grain [illegible] to the seaboard [illegible] Trade. And when grain moves, merchandise moves, mills, furnaces, forges move; the plow moves through the soil and the ship over the ocean. In fact, grain moves the world. Corn is king.

No two syllables are more familiar in every grain-growing country of the four continents than Mark Lane. They head a column of all British newspapers, are quoted in French, German, and Spanish journals, rule the marts of the Turkish Principalities, are as sacred to the sharp Greek merchants who monopolize the markets of the Peloponnesus as the dogmas of their church, and raise or depress the prices of the great staple of commerce alike in the steppes that stretch away from the shores of the Baltic and on the prairies that make up the valley of the Mississippi. The Corn Exchange takes the name of the street in which it stands. It is the only market in London for corn, grain, and seed. England is always a buyer of grain. The 77,000,000 acres in the United Kingdom never produce a sufficiency of cereals in the most abundant harvest to fill the mouths of its 32,000,000 people through the year. Hence the price that England pays for grain, settled tri-weekly at the Corn Exchange in Mark Lane, rules the prices not only at home, but slightly decreasing in the ratio of distance, all over the world.

Mark Lane stands in the heart of mercantile London. It is close upon the Thames. On every side are vast warehouses, crammed with freights borne in by every tide. On a market-day a visitor must not be overscrupulous on the score of mud or dust. Pendulous bales swing from fifty feet aloft. Casks plunge and duck headlong into cellars. Plethoric sacks stagger upon porters' legs up and down stairs. The street is jammed with loaded wains. There is no crossing [illegible]. The wayfarer dives beneath nosebags, and rubs shoulders with dripping iron tires of broad-wheeled wagons. The thoroughfare was built in earlier days, and the business transacted is too important to admit of ceremony.

The Corn Exchange stands in the center of Mark Lane, on the eastern side. It was built soon after 1747, when the present system of factorage commenced. In an open Doric colonnade, sheltered, well-lighted, roofed in from the weather, and covered by a large and handsome dome, stand before stalls, filled with samples of every variety of grain and pulse productive of food for man and beast, factors and millers, lightermen and granary-keepers, bluff country gentlemen and Kentish farmers. There are more than seven hundred independent places of business. The counters are polished by the friction of grain. They are covered with open canvas bags containing samples. Wooden compartments are labeled with the qualities offered and the places of production. Closets and lock-ups range behind, for storing after market-hours. The grand entrance, iron gates, Grecian pilasters, carved agricultural emblems, graceful galleries surrounding the quadrangle, and open colonnades (resembling the atrium in a Pompeian house, with its impluvium in the center,) make the Mark Lane Corn Exchange the model market-house of the world.

The market-days are Monday, Wednesday, and Friday; the first by far the busiest, it being the bakers' day. Hours of business are from ten o'clock to three. Bargains do not become valid until an hour after the commencement of business on the next market-day. Wheat is paid for in bills at one month, and all other grains in bills at two months. Of course no deliveries take place on the spot. Everything is sold by sample. The purchaser, the terms being agreed upon, exchanges memoranda with the seller, lays down a sovereign and a shilling to bind the bargain, shakes hands, pockets the bag with its sample and passes on.

Let the visitor enter at noon on a Monday. The Exchange is crowded with dealers, factors, and speculators. It is an unceasing babble of sounds. More than a thousand persons are talking at once. Jokes and laughter are not wanting, but there is no indecorum. The variety of classes is peculiar, and each is recognized by dress as well as physiognomy. The canny Sandy from Glasgow, bluff country gentlemen of the midland counties, Dublin exporters, keen city speculators, and the factors who supply the bakers with the number of sacks of flour they "do" during the week, are mixed together in ludicrous confusion. To these add sturdy Baltic corn-dealers; agents from Havre and Paris, watching the rise and fall of prices, inevitable Greek merchants, energetic, fiery-eyed, and swarthy; and the semi-nautical hoyman, free of river-tolls and city-dues, and there is made up as motley a crowd in complexion and costume as is often seen.

The hoyman is a native of Kent. His dress is peculiar—dating back, in part, to the reign of the Second Edward. He has the choice of stalls at the annual letting; pays no rental, is free of all entry charges; may load and unload his boats, measure his sacks, and do his own porterage, independent of municipal authority; and alone, by the custom of the market, may sell whatever he himself has brought for ready cash. It is an ancient prescriptive right. Long antedating the Corn Exchange, his ancestors gained certain privileges, which have been held sacred ever since. In the 15th century, in a time of plague and famine, at great personal risk, certain Kentish men supplied the City of London for many months with food. Market-dues were, therefore, remitted to them and their heirs forever. They paid no octroi duties at the gates, nor meter tolls at the docks, nor groundage at the market, during the reigns of the Tudors and Stuarts; and since those days, under the new regime, by a fair commutation, equal exemption has been allowed them.

Factors with a large connection rarely or never see the goods they sell. Deliveries are made upon orders. The samples settle the quality. The responsibility rests with the principals; who, if they do not deliver goods according to sample, must abide the disagreeable consequences. From this method of transacting the corn trade of the kingdom, arises what, at sight, appears great waste. Grain lies scattered in heaps everywhere. It is under the stalls, on the seats, over the counters, and ankle deep covering the floor. The ever-moving crowd are grinding it under foot. It is constantly increasing. A hundred hands are taking samples from the bags, rubbing and comparing and "palming" them, and then throwing them upon the floor.

"Why is not the grain returned to the bag?" was the question put to a friend.

"That would never answer," he replied. "Suppose I were buying oats. I take a sample; try its dampness or dryness in my hand; shift it to my other, move it about, and examine its color, smell, and taste. It has lost its dryness or dampness, and is no longer a sample; and to return it to the bag would be to deceive the next comer. Of course I throw it upon the floor."

"But is it all wasted?"

"Not wasted, of course. It is somebody's perquisite, the market beadle's, I believe. At any rate it is swept up after market hours, and in all likelihood is sold for its full value."

On either side of the Exchange, and forming parts of the Corn Market, are licensed houses of refreshment, fitted up for the transaction of business. Lockers are provided for the security of samples, desks, with stationery for correspondence; attendance of servants and messengers; and newspapers, bulletins, and prices current. Factors make appointments to meet their customers here, bargains are settled, mistakes corrected, accounts revised, profits and losses summed up, advices dispatched, telegrams received and sent away, and plans for the next market day agreed upon. Jack's Coffee House, to the right of the Exchange, has a history connected with Old London. It existed before the great fire which consumed London in 1666, and was afterward rebuilt upon the original spot. Its origin and name run back of the memory of man. Long before the establishment of the Corn Exchange, now some one hundred and twenty-five years old, it was kept under the same name by John Taylor, "the water-poet," a contemporary of Milton, with a sign upon which "Jack" was painted, holding in his hands a crown over a head. The meaning is not known. But when, during the Commonwealth, crowns became suspicious, Taylor substituted a painting of his own head, with this motto:

In the Public Advertiser of March 28th, 1760, is the following advertisement: "To be sold, a black girl, eleven years old, who is extremely handy: works at her needle tolerably, and speaks English perfectly well: is of an excellent temper and willing disposition. Inquire of Mr. Owen, at Jack's Coffee House, Mark Lane."

Taylor published his "Travels from London to the Isle of Wight" in 1647. As a specimen of the mediocre poetry of the day this extract is worth preserving:

> We took one coach, two [illegible], and four horses,
> And merrily from Mark Lane we did [illegible];
> We [illegible]
> [illegible] hath been full many a weary soul [illegible],
> And so at night [illegible] at St. Giles's,
> Which place from Brentford six or seven miles is."

Before Mark Lane had obtained its present specialty it was the rival of old Lombard street in goldsmith's shops. The Longobards, in the reign of Edward II, settled in both localities. Their badge—the three golden pills of the Medici—has descended as the sign of the pawnbrokers. The black-letter ballad in the Pepy's collection makes the husband of Jane Shore a goldsmith here:

> "Within Mark Lane I once did dwelle,
> As London yet can witness welle;
> Where many gallants did beholde
> My beauty in a shop of golde."

While Lombard street has retained its character as well as its name for at least five centuries and a half, there is neither bank, goldsmith shop, nor insurance office left in Mark Lane.

When breadstuffs run high, the speculators, whether in Mark Lane or Chicago, fall into bad odor. They are charged with monopoly, blamed for overholding, and accused of "cornering" the market. Credat Judæus. Corn is not gold. The attempt would fail. The quantities to be sold, the breadth of acres sown, the complicated details of the trade, the numerous interests concerned, the number of persons engaged in the traffic all over the world, and the facilities and speed of transportation make it next to impossible that any ring, in any country, could be successful in "rigging" the market. Practically it does not occur.

In 1854 the blunder of a British official created an enormous rise in breadstuffs throughout Europe. To meet the wants of the British army at the Crimea during the winter, the government advertised for tenders of 12,000 quarters of wheat. Thirteen proposals were sent in. Upon the designated day the bids were opened. Parties interested attended. At length, to the amazement of contractors and bondsmen, thirteen acceptances, with accompanying blanks, one for each proposer, were handed out of the office window. Through some extraordinary blunder, which was not known till long afterward, and the details of which have never yet come to light, instead of one bill, government had formally taken thirteen. In fact, every offer had been accepted. One hundred and fifty-six thousand quarters of wheat had been sold for immediate delivery. It was all to be exported. The contractors and their bondsmen were large dealers and men of substance. The effect of all this would have upon the market was not at first perceived. But it soon got wind. Mark Lane had made provisions for 12,000 quarters, it was asked to supply 156,000. The excitement was tremendous. Wednesday's Exchange became a panic. Prices rose shilling by shilling. Holders refused to sell. Buyers with bargains for future deliveries were suddenly made rich, and sellers were bankrupt. Messengers were dispatched to the provincial towns, factors crossed the Channel, Greek merchants set sail for the Danube. Bread by the quartern loaf doubled its value at the baker's shops, and the trade in breadstuffs, upon which the life of England makes daily dependence, was at a stand-still. The market eventually recovered its equipoise; but the day, like that which recorded the first defeat before Sebastopol, or the outbreak in India, is marked by a black letter on the calendar of the Corn Exchange.

The case of the contractors was distressing. They had undertaken each to deliver ninety-six thousand bushels of wheat to the government at the prices ranging during the previous week. The grain was not to be had. Farmers, as is usual on a rising market, held over. Cargoes afloat could not be purchased. No grain, in fact, shifted hands in any considerable quantity for many days; and but for the leniency of the government, at the intercession of the members of the Corn Exchange, its heaviest men would have gone to grief.

Harvest is regarded with an interest in England that Americans hardly understand. For weeks before gathering it is the universal topic of conversation. In town as well as country, by merchants as much as farmers, at the universities as often as at the provincial markets, the prospects of the crop are discussed. A good harvest is the life of trade. It extends its minute ramifications to the extremities of the body social, and the rich and poor alike. The harvest-home is the only heaven on earth to the agricultural clod. The writer was present when Philip Pusey first tried McCormick's reaper in England. It was upon his crops on the Pusey Manor (a grant to the family in the days of Alfred), in Berkshire. The laborers had heard of it, and crowded in numbers—men, women and children—to see its working. To the astonishment of Americans present they regarded the implement with intense dislike. It was to supersede their choicest labor, lower their highest wages, and destroy forever their harvest-home. They refused to gather the grain it cut, threw obstacles in its way, threatened the mechanic who was sent for to make repairs, and cut the harness of the horses. So vindictive did they become that Mr. Pusey, fearing his barns might be fired, or his crops destroyed, caused the reaper to be sent instantly back to London.

London enjoys monopolies regarding grain that are irksome and expensive to the importer. There are the dues upon entering port—water-bailage and groundage; then lord mayor's dues; and then dockage and lighterage. The city claims the right to measure all grain, whence comes the corn meterage, and the right to move all grain, whence comes the fellowship porterage. Then follow marketage, factorage, and other minor dues, subtracting seriously from the gains of the foreign grower. Upon the average annual importation of 38,000,000 quarters of wheat, however, these dues furnish a round income for the city, and enable Guildhall and Mansion House to maintain the hospitality for which they are famous.

Noticing the report that "influential citizens" are beseeching the President to pardon O'Neil, the Fenian leader, as such an act of clemency would "help the fall elections," the New York Evening Post, speaking for the "decent and law-respecting" part of the community, says: "If O'Neil had done at sea what he did on land he would have been hanged as a pirate, and all the world have cried amen."

"The Catalogue of RUMSEY & CO., of Seneca Falls, embraces over 200 different styles and sizes of Lift and Force Pumps. They are now turning out 1,500 Pumps per week, which range in price from $3 00 to $400, employing 130 hands in the business. John A. Rumsey has recently patented an improved galvanized non corrosive cast Iron Pump, which is safe from rust. An improved Hand Fire Engine of great efficiency, is also on their list. The machinery in Rumsey & Co's Factory is of the most efficient kind, much of it being of the firm's own invention, and is driven by an unfailing water power. They are now building a new factory, 84x42 feet, 4 stories. When this is completed they will increase their working force to 200 hands. The business carried on by this firm was established by Rumsey about 30 years ago."—from Age, New York. d14tf

NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!

W. E. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,

Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.

He respectfully refers to the following

CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. R. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.

It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.
